"Jock" Hoggan, of Bellevue, at 80-something, looks swell with a brand new pipe mounted in military fashion. Jock is pleased with the pipe, but kinda dislikes the small bowl. You know, the Scotties like a big bowl, so that one request for "Jokki" would keep him going for a week.

Mr. Brown had taken his son to dinner at a friendly house. The small boy was hungry, and as the dinner did not make its appearance in good time, he began picking at his bread. At last he could stand the strain no longer. Turning to his father, he said quite audibly: "Daddy, why don't you kick up a row like you do at home when the dinner isn't ready?"

Charles Traunweiser, of Calgary, president of the Alberta Hotel Association, issued a statement at Edmonton last week that his organization will support the formation of an organization proposed by Finance Minister Loney and intended to bring about greater temperance and moderation. He also said the organization has given $40,000 to the Dominion government as a "Help Win the War" donation.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Pinkney and little son, and Mr. Pinkney's mother, of Blairmore, were visitors to Cranbrook Sunday. They were on a motor trip to Silverton and other points in West Kootenay. Mrs. Pinkney, who prior to her marriage was Miss Madeleine Chardon, is well and very favorably known to many people in this city when she taught music here for several years. While here the party visited the home of Mrs. J. R. Finley.—Cranbrook Courier.

BLAIRMORE CITIZEN DIES IN CALGARY

Mrs. Annie Dobeck, 49, passed away in Calgary on Thursday morning following a lengthy illness.

Born in Orava, Czechoslovakia, she had been resident of Blairmore for the past fifteen years. She was an active member of the Blairmore Catholic Women's League, St. Anne's church and the local Slav society.

Surviving are her husband, John Dobeck; three daughters, Mrs. Annie Krennica, Veronica and Katie, all of Blairmore, and three sons, Tom of Vancouver, John in Blairmore, and Pte. Joe Dobeck at Petawawa, Ont. The remains were brought to Blairmore by last night's train. Funeral arrangements are not yet completed.

SUGGESTIONS TO CONSERVE TIRES

Motorists are urged to give particular attention to the preservation of their tires. Under wartime conditions, one of the first principles to be rigorously observed is economy, and the motorist can apply it in full measure in respect to his tires.

Time and again, federal officials have stated that present tires will in all likelihood have to do for the duration, as the country's fighting forces will require all new supplies.

A cardinal rule in saving tires, says the Alberta Motor Association, is: "Take it easy." The power in your car should be used for better handling and for getting out of tight places easily, not for driving at racing speeds. The safe life of a tire at 50 miles per hour is only half of what it is at 30 miles per hour. At 70 miles per hour it falls to only 30 per cent of normal expectancy.

High speed on curves is especially rough on tires. It has been found that motorists who drive in regions where the roads are high in curves, seldom get as much as 7,000 miles from a set of tires. When encountering a curve, driving speed should be reduced to a point where there is the minimum of side thrust.

In city driving, rapid acceleration and quick stopping do your tires no good. In fast acceleration all the punishment is put on the rear tires. Jumping starts and nose-dive stops will soon ruin a set of tires.

Corporal Cook, R.C.M.P., of High River, spent several days in The Pass this week meeting old friends. Cpl. Cook was stationed here a good many years ago. He has been in force about twenty years. He was accompanied by Mrs. Cook and children.

In recognition of work in creative drama in Canada by the University of Alberta, the Humanities Division of the Rockefeller Foundation has made a grant of $4,000 to the university through the extension department. In addition to the grant, which will be used mainly for the purchase of equipment, the foundation has also offered the university a fellowship to the value of $120 per month and travelling expenses for one year to a suitable candidate nominated by the university.

AN 18-TON FIGHTING MACHINE FOR THE UNITED NATIONS

No, Junior, these big bells are not used on tanks. The bells are being assembled for passenger locomotives in the same factory where Canada's Valentine tanks are produced in mass quantities. The Valentine, an infantry tank, is now in service on the Russian front, where Soviet military experts have described the Canadian tank as highly effective. It is an 18-ton machine, powered with diesel motor. A giant mechanical ferret, it is capable of burrowing its way through a brick building and traveling at 20 miles per hour over difficult terrain. The body is armor-plated, riveted and welded, and the rotary turret may be operated either by hand or electrical controls.

FOURTEEN HUNDRED SEE CASTLE RIVER STAMPEDE

Fourteen hundred persons paid admission to the annual stampede of the Castle River Club on Wednesday afternoon of last week, and were treated to a real good show.

Valeria Martinek, of Hillcrest, has been announced as one of the winners of two silver medals awarded for the 1941-42 season in grade 1 violin. She, too, was tutored by Mr. W. H. Moser, of Hillcrest.

Mussolini's mug was congratulated by Hitler upon attaining its 59th birthday. Hitler's words were: "These wishes particularly concern your personal health. In the unshakeable conviction that our peoples, together with the allies of the Axis, will win the final victory in the fight for Europe's freedom and future, I greet you most cordially today as always."

The trend of recent call-up quotas for compulsory military training indicates that married men will be reached sooner than has previously been expected. National defence officials have asked for 25,000 men to be called in August, and while September requirements have not been made known, it is understood that if they equal the August figure they will almost exhaust the available manpower of the army in the 20 to 40 years age group of single men and childless widowers now eligible for call.

AIR CADET LEAGUE OF CANADA

Application for enrollment in the Turtle Mountain Squadron will be received at once. Boys from Blairmore, Frank or Bellevue of ages 15 to 17 may join. There is also room for a limited number of junior members. Make applications to G. Steeves, Blairmore Pharmacy; J. B. Wilson, Royal Bank; R. C. Old, Blairmore Hardware, or S. G. Bannan. An enrollment fee of $1.00 is required, together with deposit of $1.50. Applications must be made before August 15th. For further information, see Mr. S. White or Mr. D. MacPherson.

PROTESTS A.T.A. INTERFERENCE

At Pincher Creek the school board is without a teaching staff, and at a special meeting held on Monday night, W. S. White, representative of the A.T.A., present, no progress was made toward relieving the situation. The following resolution was passed in regards to an advertisement that recently appeared in several daily newspapers: "That the Pincher Creek school board No. 121 allege that the Alberta Teachers' Association has interfered with the employing of teachers in Pincher Creek; therefore, the Pincher Creek school board asks the department of education to see that the Pincher Creek schools reopen on September 1st, 1942."

At the present time the school has no staff, and the board alleges interference from the A.T.A. responsible. The matter has been placed in the hands of the department of education for a settlement, otherwise the schools will have to remain closed. The minister, Mr. Aberhart, or his deputy, has been asked to come to Pincher Creek to review the matter.

A mammoth picnic of Calgary and district Oddfellows and Rebekahs will be held near Midnapore on Wednesday next. New features to be staged will include a pie-baking contest.

J. R. McLeod, of The Enterprise staff, received word Friday afternoon last of the death of his mother, Mrs. T. Simms, which occurred at Vancouver. He left by that night's train to attend the funeral. Enroute, he was joined by his brother, Murray, of Calgary; sister, Mrs. J. H. Parker, of Fernie, and niece, Mrs. F. Minife, of Galloway. Mrs. Simms, who was in her 82nd year, was among the early settlers in Fernie, arriving there in 1898, where she resided up to April of last year, and was well and favorably known.

Makes Surface Firmer

Rock Salt Has Proved Great Success In Road Making

The practice of using rock salt in the sub-surface of roads, which originated in Nova Scotia as a means of protecting roads against extreme winter conditions, is spreading in this country with remarkable results reported. First employed to keep frost from heaving the road surface, salt has been found to do more than serve as an anti-freeze. Through a simple action it also stabilizes the soil used in the sub-grade so that the road bed is firmer, giving longer life to the wearing surface—Scientific American.

Record Of Service

Jolleys Of Saskatchewan In A Class By Themselves

Among all the sets of twins, triplets, and three and four-of-a-family that Canada has sent overseas to the Motherland in this war, the Jack Jolleys of Saskatchewan stand in a class by themselves.

They are the only father and son who have both won their wings in this Second Great War.

The father, Flight-Lieut. Jack Jolley, after eight months of operational flying in Iceland has transferred to the R.C.A.F. Chaplaincy Service Overseas and has been posted to a Canadian station in the Midlands. And the son, Sgt-Pilot Jack Percy Jolley, got his wings at Saskatoon last December and is now completing his operational training in Britain.

Just to complete the remarkable family record of service, the wife and mother is engaged in Red Cross work back home in Canada, just as she did in England in the last war.

Veteran of 1914-18, mission-field worker among the Saskatchewan Indians, Anglican clergyman, peace-time Militia Chaplain and widely known "radio ham," Flight-Lieut. Jolley has had a career probably unequalled among men of the "cloth," and climaxed by Active Service in the air at an age when most men consider themselves too old for enlistment in even a less strenuous branch of the Armed Forces.

Born in London, England, in 1895, he was educated there and at St. Chad's Theological College, Regina, graduating in 1923. Meantime, however, he had already served his country. From 1911 until '13, while only in his teens, he was in the Royal Navy as a Boy Signaller. That was where he first got the "signalling bug" that has led him through such an interesting and varied career. His mother claimed him out of the Navy in 1913, but the next year, when war broke out, he enlisted on August 10th in the Royal Engineers, and served in France as a sapper until the Armistice.

While in hospital at Reading he met his future wife at her Red Cross duties. After their marriage they went to Canada, where Flight-Lieut. Jolley continued his education for the ministry of the Church of England.

He spent four years among the Indians at Day Stars, Saskatchewan, ministered as a student at Bethune in 1927 and Climax in 1928, the year which he was ordained to Holy Orders. He remained at Climax until 1930, and then in succession was given parishes in Bienfait, Oxbow, Koy Indian Reserve (near Pelly) and Lumsden—all in Saskatchewan province.

During these years and these travels he had become one of Western Canada's best known "radio hams." Starting with a crystal set in 1931, he worked up to a powerful private station (known as VE4MG) and received correspondence from other hams in Canada, the U.S. and Europe. He was able to light his house with surplus power from his portable generating equipment.

In January, 1941, when the R.C.A.F. issued an appeal for skilled radio technicians the versatile prairie parson volunteered, and was accepted with the rank of Flying Officer. He went by air to Iceland three months later, and wearing the half-wing of an "RO" he soon piled up 150 operational flying hours, on such widely varied aircraft as Catalinas, Hudsons, Sunderlands, Wellingtons and Whitleys.

Following the celebrated capture, by British aircraft, of an enemy submarine off Iceland, Jolley was assigned to technical inspection work aboard the undersea craft for a week.

But the church was still in his mind. For six years in the West he had been peace-time Chaplain of the South Saskatchewan Border Regiment (Estevan). And when, during leave in England last October he bumped into Sgt. Len Lightbourne of the R.C.A.F. Chaplaincy Service, Jolley didn't require much persuading to agree to transfer, which came into effect last December. Two days before Christmas the Flying Radio

Father And Son Win Wings In Second Great War

Until recently a radio observer, on operational duty in Iceland, Flight-Lieut. Jack Jolley, a veteran missionary of the Prairies has transferred to the R.C.A.F. Chaplaincy Service overseas. But he still wears his wing. His son, Sgt. Pilot Jack Percy Jolley won his wings at Saskatoon last December and is now completing operational training in Britain.

Ham again arrived in England from Iceland—this time to assume higher rank, and the clerical collar of his first and favourite calling.

He's already shared one London leave with Jack, Junior, and is waiting impatiently for the next.

Mahatma Gandhi

His Line Of Reasoning Is Out Of Tune
Mohandas K. Gandhi, whom many Americans, who know little about him and less about India, have regarded as one of the world's great spiritual leaders appears to be becoming a bit more mortal and mundane with each public appearance or utterance.

The Mahatma, it appears, is quite willing to have British and American troops quartered in India. He is quite willing to have them fight on Indian soil for the defence of India against Japan. India should not be compelled to pay any part of the cost of supporting these troops, the Mahatma contends, nor should India be forced to submit to any exercise of authority on their part. Nor should Indians be forced to offer anything more than passive resistance to Japs.

But it is quite all-right for American and British men and boys to give their lives in defence of those who refuse to fight in defence of themselves.

There may be a high spiritual quality in Mahatma's line of patient medicine talk that is not apparent to the dull Occidental mind. But most Occidentals know a faker when they see or hear one regardless of whether it's spelled with an "e" or an "i." Chicago Daily News.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AUGUST 2

ABRAHAM: A PIONEER IN FAITH

Golden Text: Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward. Genesis 15:1.

Lesson: Genesis 11:31-12:9; Hebrews 11:8-12.

Devotional reading: Psalm 25:1-6.

Explanations and Comments:

The Call and the Promise, Genesis 12:1-3. We think of Palestine as the ancestral home of the Jews, but they came there originally from a far country. The very word "Hebrew" shows this in its derivation from "Eber," beyond. It seems natural to suppose that the call to leave their home came to both Abraham and his father Terah at Ur (Acts 7:2-4; Gen. 11:31) and was reaffirmed to Abraham at Haran. Terah and Abraham settled there for a time, and there Terah died.

To Abraham (he is called Abram until the twelfth chapter, and Abraham thereafter) as Haran came an unmistakable summons. God said to him—that is, Abraham recognized God's prompting in some inward suggestion or in some outward event—"Get thee out of thy country and from thy kindred and from thy father's house." These are cumulative expressions which show the greatness of the sacrifices Abraham had to make. He must count the cost, for he had to leave behind all that was familiar and dear.

Abraham was to go to the land that God would show him. The goal is definitely stated in verse 7. The promised reward, God would make of him a great nation, is a thought which runs through the whole book of Genesis. The name Abraham (the father of a multitude, Genesis 17:5) is based according to Professor Kenn on a similarity of sound to the Hebrew word "Hamon," meaning multitudes.

In him all the families of the earth should be blessed. Through the call of Abraham, the choosing of Israel, the later history of the nation, the birth of Christ—through it all God was working to the one end, the blessing of all peoples, the redemption of the world. From his race have sprung gifted statesmen, philosophers, writers, financiers, artists, musicians. No other race has so persecuted, and yet it has survived it all.

The Call Obeyed, Genesis 12:4, 5. Abraham was 75 years old when he left Haran with Sarai his wife. Let his nephew, and all their dependents and all their flocks and herds, to go into the land of Canaan; and into the land of Canaan they came. Only the start and finish of the journey are recorded. Abraham resolved to go and he carried out his resolve. "The great trek is dismissed in a sentence"; nothing is said of the length of the journey, the dangers on the way, the hardships endured; but the essential fact is stated—Abraham had faith in the divine prompting and acted on his faith.

At Half The Cost

Machine Invented 46 Years Ago

Now Making Thatching Material

Britain's ancient roofing material, the straw thatch, has at last gone modern. A machine, invented 46 years ago, has now been revived which can make thatching mats at the rate of two yards a minute at a cost of seven cents a yard. It enables buildings and hay or grain stacks to be covered in one-fifth the time, and at half the cost.

To conserve material, socks in Great Britain will be shorter.

NEWS FROM EDMONTON

(T. B. Wadsworth)

Edmonton, July 29.—The political situation in Edmonton as the possible dates to fill the vacant seat in this legislative draw nearer becomes more confused. Despite the fact that there is really nothing at stake—no advantage or principle—candidates are being nominated by all parties, the only exception being the provincial Conservative party.

So far, two candidates are in the field, Elmer E. Roper, for the C.C.F., whose nomination forced a contest on the electors, and J. F. Lyburn, former attorney-general of Alberta, for the Independents, to whom the seat belonged before the death of Mr. D. M. Duggan. This week it is expected the Social Credit party will set their machine rolling and nominate a candidate.

The Liberals, seeing what they consider a chance to recover past losses and gain a larger foot-hold in the legislature than their present three members enjoy, are likely to nominate a candidate also, despite the fact that in the last general election they cooperated with the Independents in opposing the Social Credit forces. That will mean that there will be four contestants in the field for the former Independent seat in the house.

Enthusiasm is not high among the electors, and there is a pretty general feeling that the politicians are busy in their party tactics with the interest of the politicians in mind more than that of the electors and citizens. The old game that ruined France is being played on a smaller scale in Alberta. Political parties are multiplying because political minded ambitious men enjoy the game, and the people, whom they flatter, hoodwink and beguile for the sake of their votes are being used as the pawns in the game.

Sanity, patriotism, public interest and common sense should suggest that the vital and most important thing is that the present wasteful and visionary government should be removed from office in the interest of progress and prosperity, and it should be quite undeniably evident that the only sure way of attaining that desirable object is to unite forces, drop differences, stop quibbling over unessential platforms, personal ends and advantages and vote as a unit for once to gain the people's ends.

It is the old story of private and party ambition and selfishness gaining the upperhand at the expense of the common people. The same path was trodden by France until the tragic collapse of morale at the hands of the politicians in 1940.

The Social Credit philosophers and would-be economists are getting a convincing illustration of the futility of their theories today—convincing to everybody but themselves. During one of the legislative debates in Edmonton before the war, one Social Credit member pointed to Germany as being a country that finds the theories of Major C. H. Douglas and Premier William Aberhart workable.

The premier has insisted only recently that governments should not issue bonds, but print dollar bills bearing no interest, with which to pay for the war. Germany is doing just that, and there are now more than 24

FALLING DOWN ON THE JOB

The Hanna Herald has sought to be fair in its attitude towards the federal government ever since the last election. This administration was returned with an overwhelming majority and we have held that such being the case the campaign of widespread newspaper criticism of the government, which has been conducted for the past couple of years, was uncalled for and unwise. The achievements of Canada in the production of armaments and in the organization of military forces have been praiseworthy and we have taken pains to point this out. We even commended Prime Minister King on his plebiscite plan on the conscription issue.

The meanderings of the government ever since the conscription plebiscite was held, the obvious appeasement policy towards Quebec which has been persisted in, and the lack of a definite, clear-cut policy aimed at the one objective of an all-out war effort, have convinced us that the prime minister of Canada has failed to arise to the opportunity.

The Canadian people have their hearts in the war. The overwhelming majority gained in favor of conscription definitely proves that statement to be true. Canadians are willing to go to any length to aid in the defeat of the Axis powers. They will carry tremendous tax burdens, endure hardships, and give their services in any capacity, but seemingly the government is not of the same opinion.

It is an unfortunate thing for democracy that such a condition exists in Canada. The attitude of the prime minister has created distrust and disaffection throughout the country. The mamby-pamby leadership offered is disgusting to many people.

We do not say that all the federal cabinet ministers are under the same condemnation. In fact, such a statement would be far from the truth. Men like Hon. Mr. Ralston, Hon. Mr. Halsey, Hon. Mr. Power and Hon. Mr. Howe, are rendering devoted service and giving real leadership but the prime minister obviously is hanging back despite all his protestations that he is heart and soul in the war. We think that Mr. King has served his period of usefulness to Canada, that he should resign and hand the reins to a more decisive character—Hanna Herald.

A recruit was trying to dodge military service. "I'm afraid my shortsightedness will prevent me from doing actual fighting," he said.

The M.O. replied cheerfully: "That's all right, old chap. We've got special trenches for the shortsighted ones, right close to the enemy. You can't miss seeing them."

billon paper marks in circulation in that country, four times as much as there was in circulation in 1939, before the war. The people of Germany are finding to their sorrow that the printing of money by the government does not give it value.

Hon. J. L. Halsey, finance minister at Ottawa, hit the nail a resounding blow on the head a few days ago when the Social Credit members of parliament tricked the house into a debate on their theories once again. In replying to the claim from opposition benches that now there is a price ceiling to control any rise in prices, there could be no danger in issuing money to meet war costs, Mr. Halsey said: "The only way we can hope to keep the price ceiling on is to take away from the people by taxing and borrowing so there will not be that pressure."

"Any person who thinks we could issue $1,000,000,000 without the wildest kind of inflation is making a terrible mistake," the minister declared.

He went on to point out that the idea was "as old as the ages. Germany has had to apply the highest kind of taxation, coupled with the strictest regimentation," Mr. Halsey said. "I would not attempt to run the finances of this country by running away from the hard way, which is the only way. The easy way leads to the abyss."

PRINTING Is PRINTING!

Rather an odd expression, but one filled with a wealth of meaning.

In these days when substitutions are being advertised at cheaper rates than those for which real Printing can be done, one should stop to consider, before placing an order, if such substitution in its finished product will look well and reflect to advantage on one's business.

PRINTING

SOCIAL CREDIT STYLE

Victor Quelch, M.P. for Acadia, Alberta, a member of the Social Credit group in the House of Commons, speaking in the House Thursday said, according to The Canadian Press report:

"The press of this country to a very large extent is owned and controlled by large financial syndicates or by individuals of large financial means."

Such an assertion is so untrue as to be grotesque.

It suggests a brief review of the ownership conditions of the newspaper press of the Dominion.

There are in Canada about ninety daily newspapers and over 250 weeklies.

No newspaper in Canada of the nearly 350 in the Dominion is owned or controlled by a large financial syndicate. A group of five or six newspapers is owned or controlled by Southams, of Hamilton. That is a family affair, originated by the late William Southam, of Hamilton, a practical printer, whose initiative has been ably carried out by his sons. The Southam corporation is not the creation or servant of capital, but of brains.

Nor, outside of that, is any newspaper in Canada owned or controlled by "individuals of large means" except three or possibly four of the large daily papers; and of these, two are owned or controlled by the practical newspapermen who built them up.

In short, several hundred newspapers in this country are childishly and foolishly maligning by Mr. Quelch. Mr. Quelch in his speech is reported as complaining that since his group (i.e. the Social Credit) entered the House of Commons "the press have tried on every possible occasion to discredit us and to misrepresent what we have said."

That is not true, and one can judge by the untidiness of his previous assertion how much truth there is likely to be in anything he says in the same connection.

It might be added that newspapers on the whole have to try to please people. Even a financier who owns a newspaper wants it to pay; and to pay, it must please. Not even such a financier would see much sense in always trying to injure or libel the Social Credit party or any party. And the Canadian press as a whole is perhaps the fairest in the world, because its chief news agency, The Canadian Press, representing all shades of party in the press, is instructed to deal with absolute fairness with all shades of political opinion in the Dominion.—Ottawa Journal.

ONE ON THE EDITOR

The editor of a small town newspaper in Alberta had on his list of subscribers a Blackfoot Indian chief. Unlike many of the whites who subscribed to the paper, this chief was very prompt in paying his subscription, and the editor, thinking he could perhaps get a story which would remind the slow ones of their delinquency, asked the Indian the reason for his promptness. He was rewarded by the following answer:

"Huh! Some day me die, Me has been heap good Injun, so me go to heaven. St. Peter ask me, 'You pay all your debts?' and look me up in Big Book. If he sees that me no pay editor for paper, he say 'Huh! You no come in here till you pay for paper.' Huh! me no want to run all over hell to find you to pay for the paper. Huh!"

ERRORS OF PRINTING

Having established, we hope, that printers' errors are rarely the printers' fault, we may now proceed to a few choice examples.

By misplacing a letter, a machine operated by a compositor of outstanding accuracy once obliged a politician to say what he probably had in mind but did not intend to reveal. Instead of "the masses" it produced "them asses."

A letter's failure to emerge has been known to amend the first line of the Old Hundredth so that it read: "All people that on earth do well."

The Battle Of The Atlantic

THROUGH THE PRESS and radio news bulletins we are able to follow closely the events on the various battle fronts. In the Near East, in China, and in Russia great battles are being waged from day to day, and we can follow their course and judge the progress made by our own armies and those of our Allies. At times it may seem to us that the struggle at some point on the far-flung battle front is almost crucial, and that no effort should be spared to maintain control in certain zones. It is true that the loss of some posts of the Empire would be serious, and that the total defeat of any of our Allies would mean disaster for them and even more difficult conditions for us.

A Crucial Struggle

There is, however, one battle, considered to be the most critical of all, and of it we hear little, and are unable to follow its progress to any great extent. It is the Battle of the Atlantic. To avoid giving aid to the enemy very little information is made available, but the struggle there has gone on unceasingly since the hour war was declared, and if we are not victorious in this, our gains or defeats in other parts of the world will count for little. From this continent to England are flowing the food, military equipment and men, which will keep England free from German aggression, and eventually help to drive the enemy back across Europe and restore peace and freedom in the world. Although we do not know a great deal about this great naval struggle, we do know that the Royal Navy and the Canadian Navy, joined now by the navy of the United States, still have control of the Atlantic. We know that soldiers and airmen and food and equipment of all kinds are getting across, in spite of the fact that the Atlantic ocean is infested with enemy warships. In recent weeks we have learned that they are hurrying as far to the West as the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the Atlantic coast of the United States and the Gulf of Mexico. In spite of the number of submarines and their wide range, it is apparent that our ships are getting through, and that we are able in some measure to replace those which are sunk.

Lurking Danger

While we honour our forces in Egypt, the heroic courage of the Russians, and the sturdy and unflinching resolve of the Chinese, we must never forget the men who day and night are facing danger and hardship on the Atlantic in order to keep the scales balanced in our favor in that phase of the war. Officers and men of the navy, merchant seamen, and the men of the aerial patrol are all playing a vital part, and on them the fate of many people and nations depends. To curb the submarine menace at its source, great air raids on German submarine bases, and plants where submarines are built, have been carried out unceasingly, and doubtless with good results. It was said that the recent large raid on Danzig was a sign to the Germans that the R.A.F. will follow their submarine factories as far as they may try to move them. Canadian planes are playing an important part in the Battle of the Atlantic. Our navy, with numbers of fast corvettes, is sharing in the patrol of the sea, and merchant seamen are going back and forth with vital materials. In our shipyards, there is unprecedented activity, as our forces are joined with those of the United States and Britain in producing a continuous flow of ships to replace those which are lost.

Equals Burma Road

Freight Carrying Volume Of China's Airlines Is Tremendous

The capacity of the air lines now linking China with the outside world compares favorably with that of the Burma Road, Communications Minister Chiang Kai-shek reported to the government at Chungking.

Still further expansion is expected to increase considerably the freight-carrying volume of the air services, he added.

The ministry reported success also in providing substitute land routes for the Japanese-severed Burma Road and said many types of freight were being hauled into Free China from unloading centres. Expansion of these, too, was reported, partly by private enterprise.

Chang said the government was gratified with results of a campaign to convert gasoline-powered vehicles into charcoal burners as a fuel conservation measure.

There is more vitamin C in the peel than in the juice of an orange.

Reach Newfoundland

Canadian Airmen Arrive To Take Over Ground Work

The first draft of 24 Canadian airmen, members of the women's division of the Royal Canadian Air Force have arrived in Newfoundland and will be stationed at group headquarters. They are under the command of assistant section officer Peggy Dumbur, previously posted at Moncton, N.B., and Cpl. Isabel Smallwood of Vancouver.

Miss Dumbur is a daughter of Lieutenant-Col. D. J. Dumbur, who is stationed in Newfoundland with the Canadian troops.

The women will replace men in groundwork, clerical, mess and general duties. Another draft is expected shortly to release more men from flying duties.

Back To Old Methods

Ancient Handicrafts Are Again Being Used In British Isles

Cravings of Britain, as he is, Mahatma Gandhi, whose idea of Indian regeneration is to abolish machinery and go back to hand labor, would find much to please him in the British Isles today. With every bit of Neolithic machinery engaged in war work or other necessary production some of the ancient handicrafts for which England used to be famous are being revived, such as hand weaving, wooden bowl turning, pottery, basket making, thatching, smithy work and stone walling.

Home-spinning and weaving are once more helping to provide clothes for rural Britons. This craft, practiced in nearly every cottage home before the industrial revolution of the 19th century, by 1939 was carried on chiefly by those who did it for love of the work. Now antique dealers are finding a ready sale for old spinning wheels which have long lain idle in their repositories. Girls in senior schools are being taught these crafts, and are busy turning out tweeds for scarves, chair covers and curtains, skirts and so forth. Much of the wool used is gathered from the fields and hedge-rows—the tufts left there by sheep. The combings of long-wooled dogs are also used in this way.

In herfordshire comforts for the Navy are being made on a 150-year-old loom. Capt. Frank C. Appleton carries on his craft in a converted barn where he produces a large variety of handwoven cloth. Comforts for sailors are not his only product. A shirt wrap of heavy tweed which can lastly be done for use in air raid shelters is one of Captain Appleton's typical designs.

Shortage of aluminum and other metals, and restriction of imports of china and glass, has brought the wooden bowl back into service in Britain. People are now using wooden bowls in the kitchen in which to mix cakes and puddings, and in which to wash and launder clothes. Bowl making was practiced in England in the days of King Alfred the Great.

A Yorkshire rope spinner, using waste from Lancashire cotton mills, is producing about two miles of cord or rope every day, pieces ranging in length from nine inches to 80 yards for all kinds of purposes. He uses ancient implements, one being a cow's horn to open the strands.

Makers of strings for violins and cellos are unable to obtain Italian strings, but a Somerset man, James K. Toms, devised a new process for making strings from the gut of sheep. Toms has been making strings for 50 years and is well-known to professional players, and so excellent are his new products that Kreisler and other famous violinists buy regular supplies from him.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army. By Alan Marlowe Irvine.

Hitler must hang! And that forthright statement may be taken as a compound sentence for the whole range of Nazi leaders.

After the fighting finished in 1918 there was a lot of talk about bringing the Kaiser to trial and demands for punishment of the leaders of the German people—but, as time went on the fervour died down. Christian tenets were mouthed by the very people who later on were the apostles of disarmament, and—nothing was done to show the German people that it is an evil thing to let loose the forces of evil on mankind.

Nothing was done? Nothing! Oh, yes, a few colonies were put under mandate—the German mind would expect that; reparations were claimed—and partially forgiven; and, almost immediately, loans were made to Germany to assist in the rehabilitation of trade!

What did the Army think about all that? I can speak for only one Sergeant in that army. But I am sure that what I felt was echoed—and intensified—by the mothers of dead sons, the widows, the orphans.

What good did the Christian attitude do? Was it really a Christian attitude?

Let's answer the second question first. I don't think it was. I think that was a time when, remembering that Christ said "turn the other cheek," we forgot that the same Christ drove the money-changers out of the Temple!

Those who are wondering where the Individual Citizen's Army comes in all right! The Individual Citizen's Army—that means all of us, don't forget—was concerned and very deeply concerned, with everything that goes on in the world today.

There is not a thing that happens that does not concern each one of us. The death of an U.S. Army aviator somewhere over the Coral Sea is just as important to the whole scheme of things as the loss of a Canadian tank in Libya.

Death has hardly touched us yet. By the time the "Great War" was as old as this one thousands of Canadians had been killed in battle. There was hardly a home in the Dominion that had not been shadowed by the dark angel's wing.

And by the same token there was hardly a home in the whole of Canada that was not straining every sinew to help beat the enemy.

Then death, sudden violent death, had become so common-place that "Casualty Lists" in the daily papers occupied more space than the "Sports Pages" do today—and were as eagerly scanned.

Today as much space is given to the drowning of two office cadets in an Army Week Display as would have chronicled the deaths in action of 300 men in the 1914-18 war.

What a shame! What a shame that we should need an "Army Week" to focus our thoughts on our soldiers. It is symptomatic of something half-hearted and lackadaisical that all over the Dominion it should be necessary to stage demonstrations to remind us that there is a war going on.

"But 'Army Week' or 'Navy Week' or 'Air Force Week' should be every week. We must generate the proper state of mind about this war. It is our war. Not the war of the soldier, the sailor or the airman. And it will fall to those of us who could only hold in a very limited way to back up the fighting forces when their job is done and see to it that a grim retribution falls upon the guilty.

There is nothing soft about our men in uniform. Let us see to it that there is nothing soft about us when the day of reckoning comes. Every lamp post in the Unter Den Linden should be a gallows, there must be a gallows-occupied by carrion-birds in every hamlet, every village, every town, every city in occupied territory that has known the weight of the Nazi scourge, the stench of Italy, the material infection of Japan!

There is a job for us privates in the Individual Citizen's Army—a job we will do whole-heartedly as we look—and we shall look—upon our comrades on crutches or following "seeing-eye" dogs as we place flowers under memorial windows in our church yards.

Right now there is another job to do, the job of conserving everything that is needed for the business of winning a successful war. It is a simple job. So simple we may not think it worth while. It involves such things as cutting out joy-riding, carrying parcels from the store, turning last winter's coat, giving up smoking, drinking less tea and coffee, doing without alcoholic beverages, having shoes repaired even when the uppers are shabby.

It involves reporting infractions of the price ceiling orders no matter how abhorrent "snitching" is. None of us would hesitate to tackle or report a spy or a saboteur. Neither should we hesitate to report a commercial saboteur—for breaches of the price ceiling are acts of sabotage against the law-abiding. The storekeeper, wholesaler, manufacturer, landlord or other businessman doesn't just break a law—he harms you. If he keeps away with it because you keep silent the spectre of post-war inflation looms closer, if the collars are maintained post-war inflation will be averted and we'll have time to see that the war has not been fought in vain.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

FORGIVENESS

Persecution is the weakness of tyrants engendered by their fear, and will cast it out. Continue steadfast in love and good works.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Though men should rend your heart, let them not embitter or harden it. We win by tenderness; we conquer by forgiveness.—F. W. Robertson.

A wise man will make haste to forgive, because he knows the full value of time and will not suffer it to pass away in unnecessary pain.—Rambler.

A merely fallen enemy may rise again; but the reconciled one is truly vanquished.—Schiller.

He who has not forgiven an enemy has not yet tasted one of the most sublime enjoyments of life.—Lavelle.

Forgiveness ought to be like a cancelled note—torn in two and burned up, so that it can never be shown against one.—H. W. Beecher.

SILK FOR PARACHUTES

Belgians Think They Have Right To Acclaim Their Painter

Two Belgians met on a busy thoroughfare in their occupied homeland. One greeted his friend:

"Zai! Rubens."

The other solemnly returned the salute:

"Hell Rubens."

A Nazi officer, close by, heard them, asked suspiciously: "What is this 'Hell Rubens'?" What does it mean?"

"Oh," one of the men answered in feigned innocence, "we Belgians have a famous painter, too."—This Week.

NEW PROCESS HELPFUL

Helium, the non-inflammable gas used to keep dirigibles aloft, will speed the production of warplanes through the perfection of a new process which permits the use of the element in blow torches for welding. The new method makes possible the welding of inflammable metals like magnesium.

PAPER FROM NETTLES

It is hoped to obtain some relief of the paper shortage by the cultivation of nettles for papermaking material. A Scottish firm has announced its readiness to buy 1,000 tons of nettles at £10 a ton. Such material would appear to be especially suitable for the production of books of a severely critical nature.

VARIETY IN VEGETABLES

Harvest season brings a rich profusion of vegetables, but whatever the season, Canadian markets are filled with an excellent variety of vegetables. Eat them every day, cooked and raw, two or more kinds daily. Learn to eat new kinds, cooked in new ways.

WHY DIFFERENT KINDS

First on the list—dark green leaves, as kale, chard, spinach, beet and turnip tops, dandelion and mustard greens—rich in iron and vitamins.

Lighter green leaves—as lettuce and cabbage eaten raw—carrot and fresh green peas—rich in vitamin C.

Yellow vegetables—as squash, sweet potatoes, yams, carrots and pumpkin—due for vitamin A.

Dried peas, beans, lentils—don't forget that they contain protein and can be substituted for meat once or twice a week.

Other vegetables—as green beans, green peas, lima beans, onions and celery—give you less minerals and vitamins but are good for you and are a change.

HOW TO BUY VEGETABLES

Buy vegetables in season—they are cheaper and fresher. Choose bright, firm, well formed vegetables.

Buy beets with fresh green tops thus having two vegetables for the price of one.

Buy by the pound rather than by the bunch, as carrots and broccoli; it is less expensive.

Vegetables with little waste, as string beans and spinach, are cheaper than green peas or lima beans even though they may cost a few cents more a pound.

HOW TO COOK THEM

Wash thoroughly, particularly leafy vegetables, but do not soak in water for this removes some of the vitamin and mineral content.

Cook in the smallest possible amount of boiling salted water. Leafy vegetables usually have enough water clinging to them from the washing; for others about one-half inch in the bottom of the kettle is enough.

Vegetables are better undercooked than overcooked. Most people overcook. When you get used to undercooked ones you'll prefer them.

Whenever possible, cook vegetables in their skins; skins protect the mineral and vitamins.

Never add soda to vegetables; it destroys vitamins.

Save the water in which vegetables are cooked as an appetizer mixed with tomato juice, in soup or gravies. It contains much of the vegetable's mineral and vitamins, particularly the B family and C.

A postal request to the Western Division Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, Ontario, will bring you a free vitamin chart and a booklet "Canadian Vegetables for Every Day."

Many Patriots In Europe Are Being Executed

London.—The Germans and Italians being shot, bombed and saboteaged constantly and unmercifully by patriots, were reported to have executed or condemned to death 148 more persons in the Balkans and Crete.

The German Trans-Ocean agency, in a despatch broadcast by Radio Berlin, said 11 persons had been condemned to death by court martial at Bioli, Yugoslavia, for "Communist activity." Eighteen others were sentenced to long prison terms.

The BBC said that 75 Slovenian patriots had been shot in reprisal for the killing of two Fascists, and seven villages burned. BBC also reported that 82 persons were executed at Heraklion, Crete, on June 14, among them a former mayor of the town.

General Mikhailovitch's guerrilla armies, fighting the Italians and Germans in woods and mountains and killing them by hundreds, were reported to have gained further successes.

BBC said that near the town of Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, his forces attacked a convoy of patriots the Italians were taking to a concentration camp at Venaco. They stopped the train, routed the Italians and liberated 6,000 persons, most of them students the Italians had seized within the last few weeks.

(The Columbia Broadcasting System, heard Radio Moscow report: "Within the past 12 days, battalions of the Yugoslav guerrilla army have liberated seven towns from the German invaders, and the advance continues.")

In another effort to curb patriotic resistance, compulsory youth service has been ordered for all Czech Aryans—male and female, between 10 and 18, a Trans-Ocean despatch said. All included in the order must register by the end of next February, presumably to have Nazi propaganda forced upon them by "Quisling" Czechs.

BBC said the Italian press just has been authorized to publish details about the battles of the Italians with Yugoslav patriots. BBC added the press broadly suggested that the Italians could not send any more reinforcements to help the Germans in Russia because their hands already were full.

The guerrillas not only were assaulting the Italians on land, but also on rivers, according to reports. Radio Budapest broadcast that patrol boats protecting vital oil traffic on the Danube and Sava rivers had been shelled from the banks "several times."

Polish circles in London received reports that the leading Ukrainian "Quisling," Lieut. Ouy Pavlitsyn, had been killed by Polish patriots for collaborating with the Gestapo.

MAY BE NECESSARY

Warlike Demands Might Result In Rationing Of Rail Travel

Kentville, N.S.—Warlike demands on transportation facilities may make a system of travel rationing, necessary, W. M. Neal, of Montreal, C.P.R. vice-president, said in an interview here.

The present duty of the transportation system is to do everything in its power to further the war effort, he said, "but at the same time we are not forgetting our obligations to the public and we are doing everything we can to meet the demands of public and private business."

NO GOLD STANDARD

Says Britain Will Not Return To Gold Standard After The War

London.—Viscount Simon, lord chancellor, told the house of lords that he has heard "no whisper of any intention" on the part of Great Britain to return to the gold standard after the war.

In answer to a question, he said: "Our return to the gold standard after the last war was not a very happy one."

Attempts to transfer huge sums from one country to another as a result of war, he said, inflict harm equally on payer and payee.

ENEMY ALIENS

AID FOR CHINA

United States Plans For Delivery Of Supplies

Washington.—The Pacific war council worked out plans for delivering supplies to the hard-pressed armies of China, and its members left the White House obviously feeling that much had been accomplished.

"Now we know what the Chinese need and how and when and where we can get the stuff in," Walter Nash, the minister from New Zealand, reported to newspapermen. The council, he said, had "worked out procedure to be followed to assure that China puts up the best fight that can be put up."

Plan To Make Rubber From Grain In Canada

Ottawa.—Production of synthetic rubber in Canada under present plans will require about 2,000,000 bushels of wheat annually, it is indicated from information given in recent parliamentary returns.

One returning distiller produced in existing distilleries from grain will be used for manufacture of about 6,000 tons of buna-S type rubber annually.

The National Research Council, in another return, estimated that 25,000 tons of rubber could be produced from approximately 5,000,000 bushels of wheat.

On this basis the anticipated production of 6,000 tons of rubber will require 1,920,000 bushels.

Comparison of the costs of manufacturing synthetic rubber from petroleum products and wheat is not yet possible but the government proposes using both methods, said a House of Commons reply tabled recently.

As synthetic rubber has not been produced in North America in commercial volume no comparison of costs is yet possible, the reply said.

"It is proposed to use both processes in the government program for the production of synthetic rubber in Canada," it added. "Butanol, produced from wheat, will be shipped to the Southern Ontario plant where synthetic rubber will be produced and there converted into butadiene, the principal ingredient of buna-S rubber. The butadiene at this plant will be synthesized with styrene into buna-S rubber."

Munitions Minister Howe believes that in a synthetic rubber process which is not confined to either a petroleum or a grain alcohol base but uses both, Canada very definitely "has something" that will be of vital value not only in the present war emergency but in peacetime as well.

"I do not believe we will ever go back to crude rubber in Canada again," the munitions minister told British United Press.

At about the same time he made this prophecy, Howe received a report that the Polymer corporation, the wholly-owned government enterprise which is to have charge of the government's synthetic rubber program, had broken ground for its new $40,000,000 plant and expected to fulfill its schedule of actual production of 40,000 tons of synthetic rubber—8,000 tons of it by the grain alcohol process—during 1945.

MILITARY TRAINING

25,000 Men To Be Called In Canada In August

Ottawa.—War Services Minister Thomson said in the House of Commons that it had been necessary to send out about 20,000 call-up notices to obtain about 2,400 or 2,500 men for compulsory military training in the Toronto administrative district under the July call.

Defence Minister Ralston said 15,000 men were being called in Canada in July and 25,000 in August, and members had raised the question of why more older men were being called in some sections of the country than in others.

Mr. Thomson said this condition was caused by the manpower pool being smaller in some districts than in others. The exemptions for men engaged in agriculture had a larger effect in some areas.

Mr. Thomson said the requisition for men came to National War Services from the national defence department and indicated the various training centres or depots to which men were to report. If there were not enough men in one administrative division to fill the requisition for the training centres or depots in that district, then a call was made on a neighboring division.

ROAD TO ALASKA

Suggests That Railway Is Important Military Necessity

Seattle.—Frederick A. Delano, chairman of the National Resources Planning board sent President Roosevelt a letter advising that the United States proceed with construction of a railroad to Alaska, the Post-Intelligence reported.

Delano, the president's uncle, returned recently from an inspection of the projected rail route.

"The railway is an important military necessity," the paper quoted him as advising the president, "but even though the war were quickly terminated, this railway from Prince George (B.C.) to Fairbanks would prove a very valuable post-war development."

The resources board chairman stated five rail gateways from the states to the northern line, the Post-Intelligence said, in this order:

1. The Winnipeg gateway from St. Paul and Duluth;
2. The Saskatchewan gateway from Minot, N.D., on the Great Northern and from Jamestown on the Northern Pacific;
3. The Lethbridge and Edmonton gateway through Great Falls, Mont., and Billings;
4. The Spokane gateway via the Spokane International Railway into Canada;
5. The Seattle gateway via Vancouver, B.C.

Air Commodore Has Praise For Our Air Force

Ottawa.—Hundreds of members of the Royal Canadian Air Force are supporting the British 8th Army in its fight against the Axis on the burning sands of Egypt. Air Commodore W. A. Curtis, deputy air officer-in-chief of the R.C.A.F., overseas, told a press conference here.

Other Canadian squadrons are fighting side by side with other Empire airmen in the skies over Malta and Ceylon—"in fact, all over the world," said Air Commodore Curtis, who will return to Britain shortly after a brief visit for conferences with high-ranking officials at R.C.A.F. headquarters here.

He revealed that some Canadians had been fighting in Russia and had returned to Britain on leave, but declined to go into details. And Canadian airmen—members of the R.C.A.F. and the R.A.F.—could be found in hundreds of R.A.F. squadrons. Air Commodore Curtis had a word of praise of the R.C.A.F.'s French-Canadian squadron. He said the men were doing fine work.

Air Commodore Curtis discussed the 1,000-one bombing raids of German cities and expressed belief that raids of that size would be "one of the most decisive factors" in the victory. He expects them to increase in frequency during the longer nights of fall and winter.

"If the Germans beat the Russians—and we shouldn't think of that—they will come back and try to bomb the daylight out of Britain," said Air Commodore Curtis. "They don't like our heavy bombing. We know that. Our people can't take it like the British can."

Air Commodore Curtis said the Canadian airmen are in "grand spirits" and their fighter and bomber strength is "excellent."

He ended the interview with a warning that the Canadian people are "going to run the risk" of having the Nazis dictate to them unless they are prepared for sacrifice.

Grain Storage Problem Acute At Many Points

Winnipeg.—Grain terminals at many points in the west are nearing capacity as harvest approaches, and with visible stocks of grain totaling 418,000 bushels of all grains, Canada is faced with the most acute storage problem in history, it was indicated in figures released by the board of grain commissioners.

Stocks of all grains at the lakehead are reported at 130,809,000 bushels, with the licensed capacity of elevators and annexes at 144,500,000 bushels, the board reports.

A Fort William report said more than 5,000 cars of grain are standing in lakehead yards, and that more cars continue to enter the yards while less than 550 cars are moving east daily.

Grain in storage in principal elevators in Canada was reported officially to be 373,105,000 bushels, not including stocks in transit in the Dominion and some 15,000,000 bushels stored in the United States. Canada has a total storage capacity of 601,191,319 bushels.

Grain sources said it is expected about 400,000,000 bushels will remain in Canadian elevators as a carryover by the end of July, leaving room for perhaps less than 200,000,000 bushels storage space to handle new crop grain.

How much of this crop, which has been forecast in grain circles at more than 1,000,000,000 bushels, would be available for delivery is not known. Producers are limited to 280,000,000 bushels of wheat for delivery and it is expected much of western Canada's coarse grains will be used on the farms as feed.

Present indications are that much of the crop may have to be stored on farms. A recent statement made in Ottawa by Trade Minister MacKinnon placed this figure at about 200,000,000 bushels.

comes first in the major market!

That's why the "home-town" Weekly Newspaper comes first in the reading and buying minds of the 7,750,000 consumers in Canada's smaller communities who make 69% of the country's retail sales.

The Weekly Newspaper is the one paper that is read and discussed by the whole family. Its "home-town" news is about people they know. Its "home-town" editorials deal with matters of intimate interest to them. Its "home-town" advertisements by local dealers are based on friendly knowledge of their needs.

The circulation of Canadian Weekly Newspapers in Canada's 69% "home-town" major market total 2,800,000. That's coverage for you. But coverage is only half the story. The secret of the success enjoyed by advertisers using the Weekly Newspapers lies in the fact that the Weekly Newspapers—and only the Weekly Newspapers—can offer the sales-making friendly introduction which builds regular users of a product.
